

Product hits

By: ComputerWorld Canada staff

Computer World Canada (17 Feb 2006)

Wake up your PC remotely

01 Communique Laboratory, a Toronto-based remote access solutions provider, has released I'm InTouch Corporate Server Edition Version 2.0, its customer premise-based remote access gateway. Developed in conjunction with Hitachi Business Solution Co. Ltd., the tool is designed to give authorized employees secure remote access to corporate resources by allowing them to login, view and control their office workstation, even when it has been previously shut down. Other new features in 2.0 include remote printing and remote control using Windows Mobile-based Pocket PC devices. Security features include 128-bit SSL encryption for each remote session and the requirement for multi-level user authentication.